BABIES

New Parents Ask to Mix and Match Twins

Dr. Kenneth Merkitch has been an obstetrician-gynecologist at Gunder- sen Lutheran Medical Center in La Crosse, Wis., for 19 years, but he's never experienced a 24-hour on-call period like the one he put in on Friday and Saturday, when he delivered four sets of twins. "I don't think I ever delivered two sets of twins on a call day," he said. "It was hard to believe that everything was coming in twos, but after a while you're up all night; you might as well keep delivering babies," he said. He delivered one other baby during his shift; he also couldn't recall ever delivering nine babies during a similar shift. (AP)

'So, What? Now He's a Math Genius'

Rhode Island Hospital has been fined $50,000 and reprimanded by the Department of Health after its third instance this year of doctors' performing brain surgery in the wrong side of a patient's head. "We are extremely concerned about this continuing pattern," said health department director David Gifford. The hospital issued a statement saying it was reevaluating its training and providing more oversight, among other steps. The most recent case happened Friday when the chief resident started operating on the wrong side of an 82-year-old patient's brain (the patient was unharmed). (AP)

Cigar Aficionados Push Pepperoni Ban

The owner of Spanky's Pizza in Bangor, Maine, fears being driven out of business by the stench of cigar smoke, which customers say mixes offensively with the smells of pizza. Philip Nadeau said the opening of a smokers' lounge at the Cigar & Smoke Shoppe next door coincided with the scent's arrival. "These are two, perhaps, not compatible uses" for the building, said Dan Wellington, code enforcement officer. "You can smell it both ways. They're getting the smell of the pizza in the smoke shop." ## Special Report solves the "My home isn't selling" problem

WASHINGTON METRO – A "Special Report" explodes what its author exposes as "The myth of slow home sales." In fact, the Report explains, in clear and plain English, how a home owner who wants to sell can not only count on a sale within 120 days but can be guaranteed that the sale will occur.

The Report proves its accuracy by quoting specific local instances in which the technique it describes has sold homes time after time, quickly, efficiently, and at a favorable price.

The author of the report, noted realtor Frank Sanya, has made numerous appearances on both television and radio.

Mr. Sanya states that the Report represents the compendium of his many years of real estate experience and can be of substantial value to homeowners, especially those whose homes have been on the market unsold for a considerable period of time. The author emphasizes that although he does not accept every listing, by following the Report's procedures he accomplishes a sale in every instance in which he is the broker of record.

The secret, says the Report, is a combination of traits and procedures that consistently result in a successful sale. For a free copy of the Report, go to a private but available Web site – www.WantItSoldNow.com.

Drive for Peace Starts in Annapolis

Olmert and Abbas set goal of 2008 for treaty on Palestinian state

ANNAPOLIS, MD. | Israeli and Palestinian leaders agreed Tuesday to immediately resume long-stalled talks toward a deal by the end of next year that would create an independent Palestinian state, using a U.S.-hosted Mideast peace conference to launch their first negotiations in seven years.

In a joint statement read by President Bush, Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Olmert and Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas pledged to start discussions on the core issues of the conflict next month and accepted the United States as arbitrator of interim steps.

"We agree to immediately launch good-faith bilateral negotiations in order to conclude a peace treaty resolving all outstanding issues, including all core issues without exception, as specified in previous agreements," it said.

"We agree to engage in vigorous, ongoing and continuous negotiations and shall make every effort to conclude an agreement before the end of 2008," said the document, which was reached after weeks of intense diplomacy and was uncertain until just before Bush announced it.

The conference at the U.S. Naval Academy has been greeted by heavy skepticism, with many questioning its timing and prospects for success, especially given the weaknesses of Olmert and Abbas, whose leadership is challenged by the militant Hamas movement.

And the task is complicated by Arab pressure to resolve other long-simmering disputes Israel has with Syria and Lebanon.

Bush, in his address, defended the decision to hold the Annapolis conference, saying it was the right time to launch peace talks and urging representatives of more than 50 participating countries and organizations to support the effort.

"First, the time is right because Palestinians and Israelis have leaders who are determined to achieve peace," he said. "Second, the time is right because a battle is under way for the future of the Middle East, and we must not cede victory to the extremists. Third, the time is right because the world understands the urgency of supporting these negotiations."

Under the work plan, Israeli and Palestinian negotiators will begin talks on the most contentious issues in the conflict on Dec. 12, and Abbas and Olmert will hold private biweekly talks throughout the process, which will be monitored by the U.S. MATTHEW LEE (AP)

Cancer Calculator Revised

Doctors say previous tool did not reflect risk among black women

The formula doctors use to calculate a woman's risk of breast cancer underestimates the danger for black women most of the time and especially for those age 50 and older — when they are most likely to benefit from screening tests and protective drugs, according to the first major reassessment of the widely used tool.

The advance could have broad implications for many black women, prompting them to reconsider the danger they face from a disease that is women's leading cause of cancer

SCREENING TOOL

- The new research examined the Breast Cancer Risk Assessment Tool, more commonly known as the Gail model. It was developed by a government biostatistician in 1989.
- The model was based largely on data collected from about 240,000 white women and second-leading cancer killer.

"This could very much change the way we counsel African-American women," said Nancy E. Davidson, a breast cancer expert who heads the American Society of Clinical Oncology. "It will make women better attuned to their personal risk and more eligible for standard interventions, as well as for trials to improve prevention or detection."

The new findings, published online Monday by the Journal of the National Cancer Institute, are the latest revelation about how breast cancer and other diseases can affect racial groups differently.

"This is extremely significant," said Lovell A. Jones, director of the Center for Research on Minority Health at the University of Texas M.D. Anderson Cancer Center. "This is emblematic of a broader problem, which is we tend to make the assumption that one size fits all. One size does not fit all."

exponentially," says Smith, "but the security clearance process hasn't been able to keep up." The U.S. government is working to address the problem, but in the meantime employers are actively seeking cleared professionals to meet their needs.

Jobseekers who already hold a security clearance—many of them former military—are able to take advantage of the suite of services offered at no charge by ClearedJobs.Net, including online resume posting; monthly job fairs held locally; seminars; newsletters; and career coaching.

Employers have the opportunity to post positions on the ClearedJobs.Net online job board, search the resume database with more than 75,000 current cleared jobseekers, and participate in job fairs; ClearedJobs.Net also offers employers brand building and advertising services.

The largest group of jobseekers on ClearedJobs.Net is former members of the military. While not exclusively geared to these individuals, ClearedJobs.Net has special insight into their needs, says Smith. The company's founders are former military and ClearedJobs.Net also employs specialists in military transitioning and is active in such local groups as AFCEA-NOVA.

The types of security cleared employees currently being sought are "wide and varied," says Smith—from administrative assistants and drivers to scientists, project managers, IT specialists, intelligence analysts, and linguists.

"The only common denominator is that all jobseekers have security clearance," says Smith.

What sets ClearedJobs.Net apart from other career-building resources is not only its focus on security cleared personnel and employers, but its approach to customer service. "Our founders focus on integrity and doing the best job possible to meet the needs of our customers—both jobseekers and employers," says Smith. "This arena is governed by relationships and reputation within the community... we strongly believe in our company and what we're able to provide."

For Darrin Johnson, Director of Recruiting for L-3 Communications, an aerospace and defense firm headquartered in New York with offices in Reston, his relationship with ClearedJobs.Net has resulted in approximately 10 percent of his company's hires in the past three years.

"Because of the hard work they do on their end and their good reputation, we have consistently been able to find the quality candidates we seek out," says Johnson.

"Their approach to customer service is outstanding," Johnson adds. "They want to be of value. They really do care about getting the right people together."

The terrorist attacks of 9/11 changed not only the nation's political landscape, but its employment landscape as well. That is especially true for the many government agencies, contractors, and businesses requiring employees who hold a security clearance.

For the past six years, ClearedJobs.Net has served as a resource for both security cleared jobseekers and employers with security cleared positions and cleared facilities. The company was founded prior to 9/11—"We saw the need before the need grew," says CMO Kathleen Smith—but as a result of the attacks, the demand for security cleared professionals, not just in the Washington metropolitan area, but nationwide as well, is far greater than the supply.

Wealthy Socialite's Son Is Indicted

Prosecutors say man conspired to steal mom Brooke Astor's fortune

NEW YORK | The son of philanthropist Brooke Astor was accused Tuesday of plundering his mother's $198 million estate and conspiring to have the Alzheimer's-stricken socialite sign a new will leaving her fortune to him.

Anthony Marshall, an 83-year-old Broadway producer, was charged in an indictment unsealed Tuesday. His former attorney, Francis X. Morrissey Jr., was also indicted on similar allegations.

Marshall and Morrissey "took advantage of Mrs. Astor's diminished mental capacity in a scheme to defraud her and others out of millions of dollars," District Attorney Robert Morgenthau said.

As early as 2001, Astor's doctors had told Marshall that his mother suffered from Alzheimer's disease that her ability to understand complex issues was limited, Morgenthau said.

Three years later, the prosecutor said, Marshall and Morrissey conspired to have Astor's attorney fired and to have her sign an updated will that left Marshall virtually everything.

Morrissey also is charged with participating in the forgery of Astor's signature on that will, Morgenthau said. He didn't explain how the signature was forged.

Marshall's current lawyer, Kenneth Warner, said in a statement that he and his client are confident Marshall will be exonerated.

"Tony Marshall faithfully and effectively managed his mother's affairs for more than 25 years, increasing the value of her investments from $19 million to $82 million," Warner said. "Brooke Astor loved Tony, her only child, and whatever he received was in accordance with her wishes."

Marshall's son, Philip, prompted the criminal investigation last year after he accused his father of neglecting Astor's care and stealing her money. Astor died in August at age 105. SAMUEL MAULL (AP)

A British teacher arrested for allowing her students to name a teddy bear Muhammad will probably be cleared and released soon, a spokesman for the Sudanese embassy in London said Tuesday. Gillian Gibbons was arrested Sunday and faced possible charges of insulting religion — a crime punishable by up to 40 lashes. Muhammad is a common name among Muslim men, but giving the prophet's name to an animal would be seen as insulting by many Muslims. (AP)

Hundreds of Iraqi refugees boarded buses for home on Tuesday in the first convoy from an Iraqi-funded effort to speed the return of families that fled the country's violence and insecurity. Many Iraqis have headed back on their own from Syria and elsewhere as extremist attacks have fallen sharply in Baghdad and other areas. But now the Iraqi government is hoping to accelerate the flow — and draw more attention to the recent drop in violence — by offering to pay for trips home. Neighboring countries like Syria and Jordan are struggling with an estimated 2.2 million Iraqi refugees. (AP)

Thousands Protest Peace Summit

U.S.-hosted Mideast conference denounced in Israel, Gaza Strip

GAZA CITY, GAZA STRIP | Optimism about an Israeli-Palestinian peace deal was as rare in Gaza on Tuesday as a Coke or a Kit Kat bar, some of the small pleasures in life that no longer reach the Hamas-ruled territory because of an Israeli border closure.

In one Gaza home, neighbors sat cross-legged on mattresses around a TV set to watch speeches by Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas and Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Olmert at the U.S.-sponsored peace summit in Annapolis, Md.

"Why don't you kiss him!" one man yelled angrily at the TV when Abbas shook hands with Olmert.

Tens of thousands of Hamas supporters chanted "Death to America!" at a Gaza City rally and denounced the U.S. conference as a sellout of Palestinian dreams.

Hamas leaders said throughout the day that Abbas does not have a mandate to negotiate and that the conference would fail.

Protests against Annapolis were also held across the West Bank, which is ruled by Abbas' pro-Western government, in defiance of a ban on demonstrations.

'Guerrillas' Join French Youths In Violent Riots

VILLIERS-LE-BEL, FRANCE | Youths rampaged for a third night in the tough suburbs north of Paris, and violence spread to a southern city late Tuesday as police struggled to contain rioters who have burned cars and buildings and — in an ominous turn — shot at officers.

A senior police union official warned that "urban guerrillas" had joined the unrest, saying the violence was worse than during three weeks of rioting that raged around French cities in 2005, when firearms were rarely used.

Bands of young people set more cars on fire in and around Villiers-le-Bel, and 18 people were detained, the regional government said. In the south, 10 cars and a library went up in flames in Toulouse, police said. Police said 82 officers were injured Monday night.

Musharraf Says Goodbyes

Opponents welcome Pakistani president's change to civilian status

RAWALPINDI, PAKISTAN | A grim-faced Pervez Musharraf bid farewell to his fellow generals Tuesday, a day before quitting as army chief in a move that could ease Pakistan's political crisis.

Opponents welcomed Musharraf's belated conversion to civilian rule and appeared to pull back from a threat to boycott January's parliamentary elections.

Nawaz Sharif, the prime minister Musharraf ousted in a 1999 coup, said Musharraf's conversion to a civilian president would make "a lot of difference," and he would refuse to participate in the vote only if all opposition parties agreed to do so as well. But Sharif also insisted that Musharraf lift a state of emergency imposed to prolong his rule.

Musharraf faces increasingly adamant calls from critics at home and abroad to lift the emergency rule imposed on Nov. 3 and restore civilian rule.

To calm the turmoil, he has released thousands of opponents and let all but one of Pakistan's independent news channels back on the air.

On Tuesday, a guard of honor of about 150 army, navy and air force troops stood at attention as Musharraf arrived at the army headquarters in Rawalpindi. A military band played the national anthem as Musharraf inspected the troops.

He met briefly with other top army commanders, then traveled to the headquarters of the navy and air force in Islamabad for more farewell salutes and handshakes.

Musharraf is to appear in uniform for the last time Wednesday as he hands over his command to Gen. Ashfaq Kayani, a former intelligence service chief. MUNIR AHMAD (AP)

Over 100 Protest Md. Peace Summit

Mideast talks hosted by U.S. Naval Academy spark public rallies

ANNAPOLIS, MD. | More than a hundred activists demonstrated Tuesday outside the gates of the U.S. Naval Academy, offering their own very public take on the Israeli-Palestinian dispute as representatives of more than 50 nations and organizations met inside to chart a course toward a peace pact by the end of next year.

The rallies ran the gamut from a costumed protester mocking Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice to a peace activist who was hopeful the talks would foster further peace negotiations such as those outlined by President Bush, Israel-li Prime Minister Ehud Olmert and Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas.

"We need to make sure that their voices can be heard thousands of miles away," said Erin Pineda of One Voice Movement, which supports Israeli-Palestinian efforts leading to a Palestinian state.

At a rally site on the grounds of St. Anne's Episcopal Church, about six blocks from the academy's closed main gate, more than 50 advocates for Palestinian statehood chanted, "Two peoples, two states, time to negotiate."

The demonstrations in Annapolis were lightly attended compared with the tens of thousands of Palestinians in the Hamas-ruled Gaza Strip who rallied Tuesday in opposition to the conference. (AP)

District Cuts Street Cleaning

Dept. of Public Works suspends service until spring due to weather

WASHINGTON | The D.C. Department of Public Works will suspend street cleaning until spring, starting this Friday.

That means the no-parking restrictions for street cleaning are suspended, and motorists can park along the posted daytime sweep routes without having to move their cars on the signed days. The sweepers put out a fine spray of water when they sweep. So sweeping is stopped when the temperatures drop to prevent freezing and accidents involving vehicles or pedestrians.

Overnight sweeping of the District's major roadways will continue. Street sweeping and the restrictions will resume in the spring. (AP)

Drivers Unfazed by Cell Use Tickets

WASHINGTON | Drivers in D.C. don't seem to be deterred by the police department's enforcement of cell-phone use.

The police department says that the number of tickets officers have issued to drivers using cellphones without a hands-free device has increased for the third straight year.

D.C. Council member Carol Schwartz co-sponsored the law in 2004. She says that while it's obvious the enforcement is stronger, it's also obvious people aren't following the law. Up until October this year, officers had issued 13 percent more cellphone tickets than in all of last year. (AP)

BY THE NUMBERS: A Suffolk, Va., martial arts instructor has been arrested for kicking an 11-year-old student more than 200 times to see how many kicks to the abdomen he could take. This caused internal injuries and possibly broke a rib. Police say Susan Bateman, 47, of Hampton was arrested Nov. 20 and charged with one felony count of child endangerment.

Home Prices Fall Sharply

Third-quarter drop of 4.5 percent is largest in S&P index's history

NEW YORK | U.S. home prices fell 4.5 percent in the third quarter from a year earlier, the sharpest drop since Standard & Poor's began its nationwide housing index in 1987 and another sign that the housing slump is far from over, the research group said Tuesday.

One of the index's creators also predicted that there's a significant chance of a recession as the economy contends with falling housing prices, spiking foreclosures and turmoil in the financial markets.

"Over 50 percent," said MacroMarkets LLC Chief Economist Robert Shiller, giving his odds for a recession. Other economists have put the chance of recession at one in three.

"We're in the aftermath of the biggest housing boom in history, so how do we use historical data to judge the outcome?" he said.

The S&P/Case-Shiller quarterly index tracks prices of existing single-family homes across the nation compared with a year earlier.

The index also showed that prices fell 1.7 percent from the previous three-month period, the largest quarter-to-quarter decline in the index's history. J.W. ELPHINSTONE (AP)

Gatorade Inventor Cade Dies at 80

From 1 basic question came a billion-dollar sports drink industry

JACKSONVILLE, FLA. | Dr. Robert Cade, who invented the sports drink Gatorade and launched a multibillion-dollar industry that the beverage continues to dominate, died Tuesday of kidney failure. He was 80.

His death was announced by the University of Florida, where he and other researchers created Gatorade in 1965 to help the school's football players replace carbohydrates and electrolytes lost through sweat while playing in swamp-like heat.

Dr. Robert Cade's first batch of Gatorade tasted like toilet bowl cleaner.

Now sold in 80 countries in dozens of flavors, Gatorade was born thanks to a question from former Gator coach Dwayne Douglas, Cade said in a 2005 interview with The Associated Press. Douglas asked, "Doctor, why don't football players wee-wee after a game?" "That question changed our lives," Cade said.

Cade's researchers determined a football player could lose up to 18 pounds — 90 to 95 percent of it water — during a game. Players sweated away sodium and chloride and lost plasma volume and blood volume.

Using their research and about $43 in supplies, they concocted a brew for players. The first batch was not exactly a hit. "It sort of tasted like toilet bowl cleaner," said Dana Shires, one of the researchers.

APPRECIATION | Pro Bowl safety Sean Taylor died Tuesday after he was shot in his home by an apparent intruder, leaving the Washington Redskins in mourning for a teammate who seemed to have reordered his life since becoming a father.

The 24-year-old player died at Jackson Memorial Hospital, where he had been airlifted after the shooting early Monday.

"It is with deep regret that a young man had to come to his end so soon," father Pedro Taylor said in a statement. "Many of his fans loved him because of the way he played football. Many of his opponents feared him the way he approached the game. Others misunderstood him, many appreciated him, and his family loved him."

Redskins coach Joe Gibbs said what he would remember most about Taylor was his excitement about playing football. The coach acknowledged it will be hard to concentrate on football this week.

"I don't know how we'll deal with it, except we'll all do it together," he said.

Redskins owner Dan Snyder said the team would honor Taylor with a patch on the jersey and the No. 21 on the helmet, and he said he would fly everyone to Taylor's funeral, which he expected to be early next week.

"This is a terrible, terrible tragedy," Snyder said.

circle, Taylor rarely gave interviews. But, behind the scenes, Taylor was described as personable and smart.

After Taylor was drafted, problems soon began. Taylor fired his agent, then skipped part of the NFL's mandatory rookie symposium, drawing a $25,000 fine. Taylor also was fined at least seven times for late hits, uniform violations and other infractions during his first three seasons, including a $17,000 penalty for spitting in the face of an opponent during a 2006 playoff game.

Taylor endured a yearlong legal battle after he was accused in 2005 of brandishing a gun at a man during a fight over allegedly stolen all-terrain vehicles near Taylor's home. He eventually pleaded no contest to two misdemeanors and was sentenced to 18 months' probation.

Taylor said the end of the assault case was like "a gray cloud" being lifted. It was also around the time that his daughter was born, and teammates noticed a change.

"It's hard to expect a man to grow up overnight," said Redskins teammate Clinton Portis, who also played with Taylor at the University of Miami. "But ever since he had his child, it was like a new Sean, and everybody around here knew it. He was always smiling, always happy, always talking about his child."

Colonials Think Progress

GW faces toughest test of the year when it plays No. 2 UCLA

COLONIALS HOOPS | Even after defeating the Boston Terriers handily two weeks ago, George Washington men's basketball coach Karl Hobbs was lukewarm about how the team was shaping up.

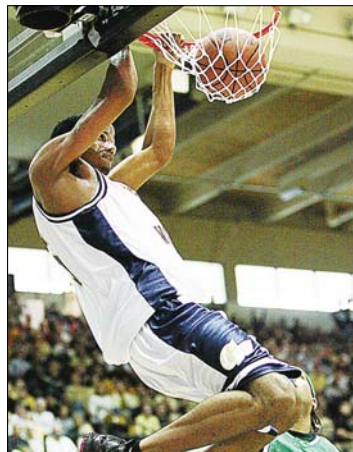

"I think we're progressing OK," said Hobbs.

Heading into their biggest non-conference game of the year against No. 2 UCLA, the Colonials still look like a team that has a long

George Washington (3-1) was upset on Saturday by UMBC, after toppling BU and Mount St. Mary's two weeks earlier, and barely edging out UDC in their first game of the season.

Under Hobbs, the high-pressure trap defense and easy baskets off turnovers and steals have been the Colonials' bread and butter — and that hasn't changed. Yet, this year's team has looked lost as soon as they crossed the half-court line into offensive territory. The drive to the basket just wasn't there last Saturday, in more ways than one.

Junior forward Rob Diggs is averaging a team-high 20 points and 8.3 rebounds.

"[UMBC] played with a great deal of hunger, and that was the difference in the game," Hobbs said in his post-game statements.

That can't happen if the Colonials want to have a chance against a UCLA team that received 25 first-place votes in this week's AP poll. But Hobbs' squad has the ability to score quickly with deep threat Mauricee Rice and big man Rob Diggs. And the Colonials gave Boston trouble by rotating in a lot of similarly sized players who can score.

"The problem they've created for us, and they've created this in the past, is that they have a lot of like-sized guys," said BU head coach Dennis Wolff. "They're able to switch out on our stuff and cause some problems." JAKE DIGREGORIO

People walk past the shops lining Pittsburgh's Market Square. The city is trying to shed its steel-town image for its birthday.

Steel Here at 250

On its anniversary, Pittsburgh is showing it has more than steel

DESTINATIONS | Note to Pittsburghers: Take what you think you know about the Steel City, wad it up into a little black-and-gold ball, and throw it away.

That's what the organizers of Pittsburgh's 250th birthday celebration are hoping that people from here — and around the country — will do next year. The city plans to mark the anniversary of its naming with a yearlong series of events in 2008 that don't just commemorate the past but also celebrate the present in hopes of changing the way Pittsburghers, and others, perceive the city.

"I think there's a wonderful opportunity for us, as well as the people who don't live here, to recognize Pittsburgh for what it is," said Jim Rohr, head of the Pittsburgh 250th Anniversary Commission.

Rohr said tourists who visit the city realize it's no longer a smoky steel town but a city with a thriving cultural district, world-class universities and an impressive vista. Pittsburghers, ironically, are most in need of convincing that their hometown has a lot more to offer, he said.

Some of the events began already, under the slogan, "Imagine what you can do here." A middle school program is teaching kids about the innovations that have come out of the Pittsburgh region — the first Big Mac was made here, as was the first aluminum can pop-top. And a campaign is under way to get 250,000 area residents to commit to getting fit.

Next year, dozens of events will be held in conjunction with the 250th anniversary celebration.

One of the biggest will be the completion of the Great Allegheny Passage, a 185-mile series of hiking and biking trails between Pittsburgh and Cumberland, Md. The passage is part of a larger series of trails running from Pittsburgh to Washington, D.C.

An inaugural ride on the passage in October will be led by a black-and-gold bicycle manufactured by a Bedford County company. (Black and gold are the colors of the city's three professional sports teams — Penguins, Steelers and Pirates.) The ride will end at the city's downtown Point State Park, where the 250 Festival of Lights will transform the city's buildings into works of art with lighting, sound and motion.

Point State Park will also figure prominently in the city's celebration. The 36-acre park at the confluence of the city's three rivers is undergoing a $35 million renovation.

Next summer, the city will host the final stage of a national cycling competition known as the Tour of Pennsylvania. Sanctioned by USA Cycling, the race will feature about 20 teams of six riders covering 500 miles in Pennsylvania. The grand prize is $250,000.

The yearlong celebration will also include smaller events in communities in and around the city, helped by grants from the 250th commission.

Organizers hope the events will be a major draw and even make it difficult to find a hotel room in the city.

"I think it's going to be a great problem to have," Rohr said.

"Investors Nationwide are Making Millions in Foreclosures... AND SO CAN YOU!"

Big-money deals in today's real estate market are ripe for the picking. While you may have read that the market is down, the current explosion in real estate foreclosures actually presents a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to make high-dollar profits on quick, low-cost deals.

Foreclosures have soared 115% in a little over a year!* This booming segment of the real estate market has every investor perking up... and so should you. With the right teacher, the right knowledge, and the right strategies, anyone can make the kind of real estate deals you only see on television.

Whether you're a seasoned real estate investor or brand new to the game and looking to secure your financial future off a couple of deals... real estate foreclosures are the new "it" investment. But like all good things, this window into big-time wealth won't be open forever. So if you're ready to make your move, I'm ready to show you how to make enough money in one deal to change your financial future.

"I'm going to give you 2 hours of access to one of my amazing instructors AND priceless information... all for FREE."

5 things you'll learn:

- 1. How to Find Foreclosure Opportunities in Your Geographic Area: Take advantage of the hot investing opportunities in your neighborhood before anyone else does.
- 2. How to Offer Distressed Homeowners a Way Out: Learn how to be a hero to a homeowner who can't afford their adjustable rate mortgage payment.
- 3. Financing: How to benefit from specific sources of seed capital and put together your own creative financing deals.
- 4. The Phases of Foreclosure — Following the Foreclosure Clock: When to make a move and how to capitalize at every stage of the process.
- 5. What to Do Once You Have the Property: Do you rent, renovate, or sell immediately? Learn what's best for your specific situation.

Not just anyone can be one of my instructors.

It takes a superior level of real-world experience to have a chance to speak in front of Trump University students. My instructors have to practice what they preach. And through their experience, they're armed with the knowledge to teach you the strategies to be successful. When you come to my Foreclosure Seminar, you can be certain to hear from men and women who are currently making money investing in real estate and want to teach you how you can too.

Learning to ride the recent tidal wave of real estate foreclosures has never been FASTER or EASIER... UNTIL NOW.

Right now, there are literally thousands of undervalued properties — many in your area — ready to be purchased far below market value and sold high. In nearly all my years of detecting the most lucrative investment trends, I'd be hard-pressed to find a hotter investment opportunity than foreclosures right now.

Why is the profit potential so great?

- 1. Foreclosure properties are often sold way below market value. That means you can buy low and sell high.
- 2. Lower down payment, smaller mortgage, more cash flow. Less of a financial burden on you as the investor.
- 3. High-quality property. You'd be shocked to see some of the most beautiful houses available (some may even be in your neighborhood) are foreclosures.
- 4. Foreclosures have risen 115% in a little over a year, and I am confident they will keep rising. This high-volume trend means you won't be searching for available deals. You just need to know where to look for the best ones.

The current rise in foreclosures is an incredible opportunity for you to make legendary real estate deals. It's time to achieve the privileged life you've always dreamed about... not years from now, but just a few short months from now.

Cars

The 2008 Audi S5 Coupe, the performance variant of the A5 Coupe, boasts a 4.2-liter direct-injection V8 engine, and a redesigned front suspension and steering system.

Silky Smooth S5 Is Dipped in Sin

2008 Audi sports coupe is Ingolstadt's latest great performer

SLICK WHEELS | For reasons that scarcely require elaboration, "lubricity" is one of my favorite words. It is, first of all, fun to say, all slippery with sibilance. Second, many fine things are lubricious in nature.

And that brings us to the 2008 Audi S5 Coupe. The S5 — the performance variant of the A5 Coupe, with an extra 89 horsepower in the snout — is another in a lengthening line of Ingolstadt's products that deliver crazy-great performance with a refinement and absence of stiction that makes them feel like they are lubricated with angels' tears.

Not surprisingly, the S5's clutch pedal action is light and precise, but it's the way the clutch engages — with no palpable vibration or even a dry whisper as it meets the flywheel — that is so uncanny.

Lower and wider than the A4, and shod with the mighty Dunlop Sport Maxx tires, the S5 has road-holding grip for days. And, thanks to the 60/40 torque split of the Quattro system, it has the handling character of a proper rear-drive sport coupe.

Perhaps the slickest bit of lubrication on the S5 is its shape. With the merciless technical beauty of that face, the car should not cut through the air as easily, or quietly, as it does.

NUTS & BOLTS

I could go on like this, since the entire car feels as if it were dipped in hot-buttered sin.

As a real-world, break-out-the-checkbook investment, the S5 is more accomplished than the Mercedes-Benz CLK, more affordable than the BMW M6, more practical than a Porsche Cayman.

But for me, as much as I admire the Audi, I could never, ever buy a car that gets 14/21 city/highway mileage. For all its lubricity, the S5 has that one major sticking point.

Calculated Stardom

Songwriter Ryan Tedder methodically moves toward the top

CLIMBING | Ryan Tedder, the front man and founding member of the alt-rock band OneRepublic, is first and foremost a writer. He's penned tunes for such pop starlets as Natasha Bedingfield and Hilary Duff, co-wrote with Jesse McCartney a U.K. chart-topping hit ("Bleeding Love") for Leona Lewis, and collaborated with rappers Lil Jon and Bubba Sparxxx. OneRepublic's high-profile cameo on Timbaland's album "Shock Value," a remix of the band's string-soaked lament "Apologize," which has been holding strong on the charts, is a testament to the versatility of Tedder's compositional skills.

In OneRepublic, Tedder uses this talent to fine-tune the traditional ingredients for pop stardom (giant choruses, suave faux-hawks) and snip off anything or anyone that gets in the way. As modern rock becomes harder to sell in huge numbers, and professionalism is quickly overtaking spontaneity, the most popular new bands know that hits don't come accidentally. The potential of OneRepublic's debut album of meticulously earnest ballads, "Dreaming Out Loud" (released last week), will depend on 28-year-old Tedder's ability to single-handedly script

As his story goes, OneRepublic was formed by high school buddies in a bucolic Colorado town and teased with early success upon moving to Los Angeles, only to be shattered by major-label politics. Then the band climbed the MySpace Unsigned charts and scored a life-raft record deal and remix from Tedder's longtime mentor Timbaland.

That story leaves out a few of the realities of how a talented, sharp-dressing and fiercely ambitious songwriter reinvents himself and his band — a route involving a fundamentalist Christian education, the affirmation of 'N Sync's Lance Bass and booting a longtime friend from the band for crimes of fashion.

"Nowadays, everything I do is very calculated," Tedder said. "Back then, I'd see any opportunity and jump at it. But I swore to myself I wouldn't do anything but music, that until OneRepublic paid my bills, if a director showed me a scene for a movie and asked me to write a song for it, I'd say 'Cut me a check and I'll do it.'"

Tedder credits the Timbaland affiliation for fast-tracking his career, with the MTV showcase and solo contract being two of a few pockmarks. Numerous demos of Tedder singing tracks planned for other artists are floating around the Internet, but after OneRepublic's success, he's reluctant to point them out.

"It's like how David Duchovny popped up in a porno," Tedder said. "It's all stuff I didn't write for any one person, and then it ends up in the hands of the biggest cheeseball. When you're a writer, you live and die by every cut you get."

'Waitress' is like a fresh piece of apple pie, side of tragedy

DVD | The romantic dramedy "Waitress" (Fox, $30), arriving Tuesday on DVD, is a thoroughly delightful film about a young woman working at a diner (Keri Russell) with a penchant for baking pies, who finds herself trapped in a loveless marriage to a brute (Jeremy Sisto). Her plans to enter a pie-making contest and use the $25,000 prize to escape her existence are thrown awry when she discovers she's pregnant, and things only become more complicated when she falls in love with her doctor (Nathan Fillion).

Tragically, writer-director and co-star Adrienne Shelly never got the opportunity to witness the film's warm reception — she was murdered a year ago in her New York home. Eric Clapton and other greats make music for a worthy cause

LIVE | The guitar gods gather for "Eric Clapton Crossroads Guitar Festival Chicago" on "Great Performances" (9 p.m., PBS). Taped before a live audience at Chicago's Toyota Park last July, the benefit concert for Clapton's Crossroads rehab facility offers many a thrill for fans of blues, country and classic rock, including an 81-year-old BB King breaking into "The Thrill is Gone."

Actor and Chicago booster Bill

GUITAR HERO: Watch Eric work his magic on PBS' "Great Performances."

Murray acts as host and court jester, changing into wigs and costumes reflecting various stages in Clapton's career. He opens the proceedings with a fan's rendition of Van Morrison's "Gloria," the only song he knows how to play on a guitar.

Highlights include several generations of musicians, from John Mayer to Buddy Guy and Vince Gill, Johnny Winter, Willie Nelson and Robbie Robertson in between. Clapton's fellow Yardbirds guitarist Jeff Beck wows the audience and is accompanied by a striking young bassist.

Clapton also reunites with Blind Faith alumnus Steve Winwood to perform "Presence of the Lord" and "Can't Find My Way Home." It's hard not to find something to love in this celebration of loudly amplified sound. KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

ON TV TONIGHT

BOYS IN RED
Anderson Cooper moderates a REPUBLICAN PRESIDENTIAL DEBATE (8 p.m., CNN), with questions provided by citizens who submitted them through YouTube.

BIG GREEN CHRISTMAS
Mike Myers, Eddie Murphy, Cameron Diaz and Antonio Banderas add their voices to SHREK THE HALLS (8 p.m., ABC), a new holiday offering spun off from the popular CGI film franchise.

DEBBIE DOWNER
Every year brings new Christmas specials, but few linger in our memories and become annual favorites like DR. SUESS' HOW THE GRINCH STOLE CHRISTMAS (8:30 p.m., ABC), a holiday staple since 1966.

CLOSETED SKELETONS
Flashbacks prove revealing about the Darlings' dirty laundry and Nick's father's life and death on DIRTY SEXY MONEY (10 p.m., ABC). KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

Once the mark of an outlaw, tattoos are a hot marketing trend

What does Angelina Jolie have in common with Joseph Stalin, Thomas Edison and two out of every five Americans between the ages of 26 and 40?

They all have tattoos.

Once seen as a silent cry of rebellion, tattoos have become so mainstream that advertisers are using them to market everything from tires and shoes to wine and energy drinks.

"I would certainly say it has lost most of its social stigma," said Vince Hemingson, a writer and documentary filmmaker who runs the Vanishing Tattoo Web site.

On a never-ending quest to appeal to young, hip consumers, companies of all kinds are trying to associate their products with the free-spirited chic of body art. General Mills has been selling Fruit Roll-Ups with tattoo-shaped cutouts. Nike has employed celebrity tattoo artist Mister Cartoon to design six lines of limited-edition shoes. And just this month, the glass and crystal seller Steuben Glass announced it would sell tattoo-inspired vase and crystal sculpture designs by artist Kiki Smith.

The 7-Eleven convenience store chain recently started selling an energy drink called Inked, aimed at people who either have tattoos or find the rebellious image appealing.

"We wanted to create a drink that appealed to men and women, and the tattoo culture has really become popular with both genders," said 7-Eleven's Michele Little. "The rite of tattoo passage isn't only limited to the young, but also to those who think and act young."

Tattoos are becoming so pervasive that some see them as less effective in marketing to trend-setters. Once corporations use tattoos, it's clear they have lost some of their edginess, according to David Crockett, assistant professor of marketing at the University of South Carolina.

"You've got this constant game of cat and mouse, of youth culture and these companies. That life cycle just gets shorter and shorter and shorter," he said.

Nathan Lin, a tattoo artist and organizer of the annual Boston Tattoo Convention, has witnessed the growing corporate sponsorship of tattoo culture first-hand. This year, the Boston event was backed by Toyota Motor Corp. and Bud-

"It puts it far outside the stereotypes of bikers and rough types," Lin said. "People think of urban moms having tattoos." VINNEE TONG (AP)

Facebook Meets Mario

Technology

Video games may be the future of online social networking

Jo Ann Hicks doesn't identify with gamers, but she spends hours online every day playing "Kaneva."

The 41-year-old homemaker likes the shopping-and-partying game — where she operates a virtual nightclub and hosts parties — because it helps her interact with people, not provide an escape from them as traditional games often do.

Social and gaming networks, once considered polar opposites, are cross-pollinating as online interactions replace prime-time TV and other, more traditional media experiences. Games like "Kaneva" are attracting players that games like "Super Mario Brothers" never did.

"I run around and act like a 40-year-old person. I have my little clan we hang with. What people will say is more interesting to me," Hicks said. "As opposed to Mario, who's only going to jump."

Game developers say there's money for both sides in this convergence.

Social networks that incorporate more features of "massively multi-player online games" could eventually enhance their already substantial earning power, and gaming sites would benefit from increased membership and broader acceptance.

David Dague, a 34-year-old executive in Chicago who runs a Web site called Tiedtheleader.com, said games have changed fundamentally since the early days of "Space Invaders."

"I've seen gaming go from a solitary thing to where there really is a cinematic experience going on in front of you that you can share in a social capacity," Dague said.

"Video games have become the ultimate party line," he said. "The question is, 'Who are you sharing it with?'"

Played in virtual worlds with advertising and goods for sale, games like "KartRider" and "Kaneva" now go beyond the scope even of early interactive games. They're less about skill levels and escapism and more about joining friends and strangers in virtual spaces where chatting, comparing fashions, going dancing — and, yes, slaying monsters — are all options.

It's a substantially different business model from online fantasy games like "World of Warcraft," which tend to require subscriptions, at $15 or so per month, and usually don't allow users to buy things for real money, online or off.

"Think of 'World of Warcraft' as kind of closing the book on this generation of games," says Christopher Sherman, executive director of Virtual Worlds Management. "Those folks who are developing the next generation of massively multiplayer games really need to raise the bar anew."

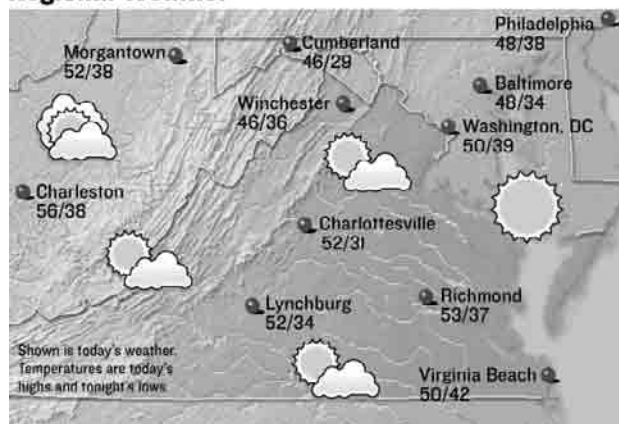

Stephen Prentice, a senior analyst for the Gartner Group in the United Kingdom, believes the time is right for online social video game services to take off. The big question is who will succeed first.

"The huge opportunity is for a lightweight, three-dimensional environment, a virtual world equivalent of Facebook," Prentice says. "Trying to predict who that is going to be is difficult. Anything could happen here." MATT SLAGLE (AP)

P Glamour PUSS

Move over Jackie: It's time to give Nancy Reagan frocks props

A mention of first lady style typically invokes iconic visions of Jacqueline Kennedy in pearls and a pink pillbox hat. But a new exhibition devoted to Nancy Reagan's signature look proves that this former White House doyenne more than held her own when it came to glamour.

The yearlong fashion retrospective, which opened recently at the Ronald Reagan Presidential Library and Museum in Simi Valley, Calif., showcases 80 looks, beginning with Reagan's simple I. Magnin wedding suit and the gold brocade Galanos evening gown she donned for her husband's second California gubernatorial inauguration in 1971. Like most of the other timeless gowns and suits, the ornate dress easily could sidle into a contemporary collection.

"She knew her style very well, and it was always simple and elegant," says designer James Galanos, who first met Reagan in 1949 at the boutique Amelia Gray in Beverly Hills, Calif., and went on to collaborate with her for two White House terms.

A recent peek at the exhibit, co-curated by exhibition designer Rush Jenkins, feels like a stroll through history. The chronological layout, organized in chapters that range from "White House Beginnings" to "Public Servant and Spokeswoman," illustrates her roles and corresponding styles.

For the first presidential inauguration, Reagan — always a size 2 — wore a red Adolfo dress and coat bright enough to enrage a bull. During Cold War visits to the Soviet Union, she opted for muted wool suits that reflected the stoicism of that country.

Certain pieces became staples. The Kelly green Galanos wool coat she first wore to the Iran hostage release ceremony in 1981 became the sartorial equivalent of eggnog when she began modeling it every year at Christmastime.

For the afternoon wedding of Prince Charles to Lady Diana in 1981, Reagan eschewed her primary color palette of red, blue and green for a Galanos peach silk blouse and skirt, with a matching coat and chiffon scarf. The British press declared her "elegantly turned out."

The American media, however, were not as flattering toward her penchant for high fashion.

Her glamour sometimes spurred more ire than awe. Reagan was widely criticized for her extravagance during the economic downturn, and she took her biggest drubbing for commissioning $200,000 worth of china for the White House in 1981. A year later, however, she shocked journalists and her husband alike when she paraded onstage during a Gridiron Dinner wearing a crazy getup that included a feather boa and yellow galoshes. The first lady belted out "Second Hand Clothes" to the tune of "Second Hand Rose."

"The reporters saw that she could laugh at herself," co-curator Jenkins says.

The exhibit's final room looks at Reagan's life after her husband's death. A display of letters from the late president includes endearing monikers like "Darling Wife." But it's the one that says "Dear Glamour Puss" that feels fitting.

Preventative Thong

Here's one way to deter Christmas weight gain: Parade before a full-length mirror in a thong. As only the most unnaturally skinny or unnaturally uncritical of females can survive this act, the crushing self-hate that follows will make gingerbread cookies taste like middle school, when you'd change for gym in a stall so the other girls wouldn't call you Chicken Butt, except they did anyway. Amplify your mental self-abuse by choosing a festive under-thing, like HANKY PANKY HOLIDAY THONGS ($20-$25, Neiman Marcus), which come in a dizzying array of choices, and by dizzying we mean red, green, with crystals, with bows, low-rise and "original." ### Don't Freeze the Burn

The REYNOLDS HANDI-VAC VACUUM SEALING SYSTEM ($10, grocery stores) is the PERFECT GIFT for the family member who always volunteers to deflate the air mattress, watching in awe as the electric doohickey reduces the plump cushion to a sad, shriveled plastic sheet. This handheld gizmo, which resembles a morbidly obese electric toothbrush, is used with special zip-up baggies equipped with air holes. The suction cup on the vac's end slurps up excess air in the bag, tightly encasing the contents — presumably food, though any number of other items would be amusing — in wrinkly, oxygen-free plastic. The mission: to prevent freezer burn, which it fulfilled. H.J.M.

Discussions

Taylor Reaction

Washington Post staff writer and “Redskins Insider” blogger JASON LA CANFORA was online Tuesday and discussed the death of Redskins safety Sean Taylor and reaction from the team, the NFL and the public.

I am just so saddened and feel helpless as a lifelong fan, as most Redskins fans feel right now. I know this isn't the right time, but my hope is that they retire his number immediately as a memorial for him. Any thoughts on that? Just heard the NFL is going to honor him at all stadiums this weekend, and I would not be surprised if Sean is in the Ring of Honor at some point.

Yes, he was a great football player. Yes, this is tragic. But let's not behave like we have witnessed the assassination of Mother Teresa! Does anyone remember that this guy was fined $17,000 by the NFL for spitting on a player during a game? I hope the media don't go overboard with their coverage of this. He is not a saint.

No one is a saint. Some people have already said it was terrible that the Post included some of Sean's backstory in the coverage Monday. Others will say we did not include enough.

Has there been any talk of a connection between the person who murdered Sean and the event with the ATVs a couple years ago?

The authorities will certainly be investigating such a link, and Sean's lawyer told me that he turned over a ton of his files on that case to the police this week. It certainly does not seem random in nature, and Vinny Cerrato [Redskins VP of operations] said it looked like a deliberate attack himself.
